

TEACH. LEARN. REPEAT.

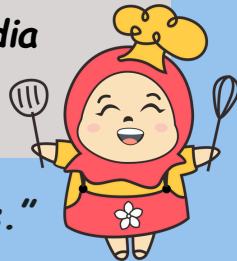

When we share what we know, we grow what we have.

Bring what you know. Leave with even more!

Start with your Strengths (Bird-in-Hand Principle)

- Skills in organizing, web design & gardening
- Connections with libraries, community centers & local groups
- Neighbors ready to teach cooking, knitting & more
- Support from local social media voices

"Stronger skills. Stronger streets."

Bring Your Best. Build the Rest. (Superpower Principle)

- One founder was a Community Connector—built partnerships and opened doors
- The other was a Visual Storyteller—crafted bold, simple designs that spoke loud.

Start Small, Aim High (Affordable Loss Principle)

- Invested just our time + ~$100 for flyers & digital tools.
- Used free library rooms instead of renting space.
- Worst case? Low turnout = small cost, no big loss.

From "No Thanks" to "Sold Out!" (Lemonade Principle)

- Low sign-ups for 'Advanced Excel'? No problem!
- A quick survey showed seniors needed basic digital skills
- We pivoted fast—'Intro to Email & Online Safety' was a hit!

Alone we know a little, together we know a lot.

STITCHING TOGETHER SUPPORT, ONE PARTNER AT A TIME! (Crazy Quilt Principle)

- Library gave us space and shouted us out
- Hardware store said "no cash, but how about discounts?"
- Boom: A patchwork of partners who actually care
